

Angel Hardy

A little over four years ago I packed up all my things, hopped in my car and headed for a new journey. More importantly I would be starting my very first college semester. Though I was nervous I knew that Valdosta State University was the place for me. Starting with the Emerging Leaders program my freshman year and all other connections I've made since have only built my character. Initially picking a major was difficult; finally I found the Sociology department. After taking an intro course I knew this was the major for me. As a first generation college student I want nothing more than to please my family and set an example for the younger members of my family. It took hard work and dedication for me to make it this far. And as a future sociologist, I hope the knowledge I have gained here at VSU will aid in my quest to better my community and those around me. I would be lying if I said it was all easy; but it'll all be worth it once I walk across that stage to receive my degree.
